Five Cases Heard

Court Convenes; Grand Jury Returns Ten True Bills

Seven Grand Jurymen returned a true bill on each of the ten bills of indictment presented Tuesday during the first day of the April term of Circuit Court in Appomattox County. Three appeal cases from Judge Charles Crawley's lower court were disposed of Wednesday morning. At 2 p.m. the same day the case of the Commonwealth versus Wilbur M. Spencer, 29, of Rt. 2, Wingina, was heard. Spencer was charged with manslaughter in the death of Mrs. Corinne Miller, 57, of York County, following a traffic accident January 12.

Upon the recommendation of a prosecuting attorney George Abbitt the court reduced the charge to reckless driving and imposed a $25 fine, six months sentence suspended, and a 60 day revocation of Spencer's driving license.

Three Days — Seven Years

The case of Commonwealth versus Otis Wiley was heard at 2:30 p.m. Wiley, 36, Negro, and a native of Buckingham county now living in Richmond, was charged with unauthorized use of a vehicle. The case dates back to Friday, March 23, 1956, at which time Wiley allegedly asked to try out a 1950 Oldsmobile car for possible purchase from Jones Motor Company of Appomattox. Three days later the automobile was recovered with keys inside, and in running condition, in Appomattox by Investigator R. L. Bumgardner.

Wiley, legally "missing" ever since, was brought back to Appomattox early in March by Bumgardner following a routine finger print check as a result of arrest on another charge in Richmond.

He pleaded not guilty to the charge, but was found guilty by the court, and upon recommendation of prosecuting attorney Abbitt was sentenced by Judge Joel Flood to one year in the penitentiary, suspened upon five years of good behavior, plus one year public under the supervision of Parole and Probation Officer W. A. Dean.

Asked where he had been for seven years Wiley replied, "Oh, Detroit, Canada — all around." He has visited Appomattox county at least five times since 1956, and is now employed as a service station in Richmond where he says he regularly services the cars of "Federal men."

Ten True Bills

The Grand Jury heard the following cases, and in each case rendered a true bill: Commonweath vs Vanie Scott, felonious shooting. Commonwealth vs William Randolph, malicious wounding. Commonwealth vs Eugene Vernon Eaton, grand larceny. Commonwealth vs Wilbur Morris Spencer, manslaughter. Commonwealth vs Levi Jackson, disposing of goods having levy on them. Commonwealth vs Theodore Walker, disposing of goods having levy on them. Commonwealth vs Richard Oliver Martin, arson. Commonwealth vs Otis Wiley, unauthorized use of a Oldsmobile Club sedan, 1949. Commonwealth vs Sydney Blankenship, forgery. Commonwealth vs Steve Justus, unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

Grand Jury

The Grand Jury was composed of Duvall Conner, R. B. Hudgins J. L. Thornhill, W. A. Jones, J. H. O'Brien, G. F. Langran, and H. C. Blackwell. They were instructed by the court that they will be called to hear other cases before the current term of court is completed.

Businessmen Help Cancer Crusade

Local businessmen will be making the rounds of other business establishments in the next few days, collecting funds for the April Cancer Crusade. They hope to finish their part of the annual drive by April 15, according to the chairman, Mrs. Billy Chenault. Funds and reports will be turned in to her to be forwarded to Crusade treasurer, Mrs. Mary S. Hudson.

Businessmen participating are Frank Wooldridge, Larry Young, David R. Caldwell, Robert Montgomery, Bruce Kroog, C. B. Rush, Edwin Carter, Bobby Phelps, Garland Plunkett, John Harrison, and A. R. Harwood, Jr.

March Of Dimes Total Reported

Final tabulation of March of Dimes figures reveals that $2,653.57 was given by Appomattox residents. This, plus a balance of $14 already in the bank, totaled what chapter chairman R. W. (Bobby) Mitchell called a "very fine response" from citizens.

The Mothers March, alone brought in more than $500, and Appomattox county businessmen contributed more than $700. On the other hand, total chapter expenses were only $19, Mitchell reported, which means that both the local chapter and the National Foundation will each receive $768.22. A 25 per cent portion of donations goes to the Medical Scientific Research Fund and accounts for the remaining $512.14.

Mitchell said that much credit is due the following people for the success of the campaign: Mr. and Mrs. Crawford Davidson, M. Earl Smith, Mrs. Mozella Price, Mr. John Hall, Mr. Earl Agee, and Mr. Ralph Reynolds.

American Legion To Assist In Peace Service

Fauber Reports Progress On Old Court House

A unique visitors center, combined with the restoration of the old courthouse at Appomattox, has been planned by the National Park Service and Lynchburg architect J. Everette Fauber, Jr.

Fauber, who is presently making working drawings of the entire court house restoration, including its grounds, expects to have the plans completed by the end of April and put out to bid early in May. The estimated cost of the entire project is expected to be around $134,000.

From the courtyard of the ante bellum period restoration, the visitor will pass through a three-fold into surroundings and atmosphere as modern as tomorrow.

The Lynchburg architect said the exterior of the famous courthouse will be reconstructed in minute detail as far as is possible from an exhaustive research.

But the interior of the building will feature an information lobby with rest facilities, offices and storage area on the ground floor and a 70 - seat capacity theater in the center of the second floor with exhibits around the outside walls.

The combination of the restoration and visitors center was the outerowth of a compromise by the Park Service to pacify area residents who raised a storm of protest in 1961 when it was learned the Park Service had decided to abandon the court house restoration in favor of a modern visitors center.

Following public hearings in which area residents met with Park Service representatives, and through political action at the Congressional level, the historic courthouse was again included in the restoration plans. However, the Park Service decided to combine the project by reconstructing the courthouse exactly on the outside and utilizing the inside for the visitors center.

Fauber said the building will be built of hand - made face brick over masonry blocks. Tin shingles will be used on the roof as was the original roof and the gutter will be reproduced exactly as the original. He said several gutter brackets have been found in the excavation and will be used as models to make new ones.

He explained two grand staircases will be built on the east and west fronts of the building to the second floor which housed the courtroom in the original building. The lower floor was used for offices by the county a hundred years ago.

Park Superintendent Thomas F. Norris will be the contract officer at Appomattox for the project and will have complete supervision of the restoration. He said a contract for the construction is expected to be awarded by July 1 with completion slated in the spring of 1964.

In addition to the ultra-modern interior, the entire building will be air conditioned as is customary in other visitors centers currently being erected by the Park Service.

The documentated historical report for the restoration was done by research historian Frank P. Cauble. The archeological report was done by Edward EcM. Larrabu who is with the Park Service.
